Abstract of the Disclosure

A reconfigurable computer system based on programmable logic is provided. A system design
5 language may be used to write applications. The applications may be automatically partitioned into software components and programmable logic resource components. A virtual computer operating system may be provided to schedule and allocate system resources.
10 The virtual computer operating system may include a virtual logic manager that may increase the capabilities of programmable logic resources in the system.